

(The following is a news release from the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources, April 10, 2008)

Hey Teens! Win a Free Fishing Trip!

If you're a junior high or high school student, you could be fishing with some of Utah's best anglers this summer.

And the fishing trip to Flaming Gorge Reservoir is free!

The trip includes an overnight stay and meals with the fishing pros and Division of Wildlife Resources conservation officers. You'll also receive free fishing tackle and one day of special fishing instruction.

To qualify, you must submit a 300- to 500-word essay at www.wildlife.utah.gov/essaycontest by April 30. "Tell us why fishing is special and important to you, and what you can do to protect its future," says DWR Sergeant Stacey Jones. Jones is also president of the Utah Conservation Officer's Association.

In May, one winner in each grade, grades 7 through 12, will be selected for the free trip.

The contest is sponsored by the Utah Conservation Officer's Association. For more information, visit www.wildlife.utah.gov/essaycontest.